

The Albuquerque Citizen has a kindly word for the RUSTLER.

Venomous potities in any man, proves conclusively that his disposition is naturally bad.

For every dollar of patronage this paper gets from Cerrillos, it brings at least ten to the town.

Sheriff Lockhart, of Grant county, has captured another of the escaped convicts at Globe, Arizona. This one is Charles R. Huber, alias "Windy Dick," accredited with being one of the worst of the lot.

The new Secretary of War, Hon. Stephen B. Elkins, being a New Mexico man once in his life and having yet such extensive property interests in this territory, certainly should be willing to use his influence wherever and whenever possible in her favor.

Gov. Prince has gone on his annual vacation trip to his old home in the East. In his usual busy and thoughtful manner of condensing time and combining good business results even with his holiday trip, he stops to represent New Mexico at the Trans-Mississippi congress, Omaha. He will be absent from the Territory about a month.

The Maroon ball nine, of Albuquerque, went to El Paso this week to give instructions how to play the national game. In two straight games they were so paralyzed that they could scarcely tell whether they were Maroons or international goose eggs. The Albuquerque papers have been trying to explain matters, but even they appear a little dazed.

Foster, the weather prophet whose forecasts through the season have appeared almost phenomenal, now states that we may look for an active cold spell about the fifth of November, a foretaste of the hard winter to follow. The cold snap will follow the intervening storm wave now about due to cross the continent from the Pacific coast and which it is promised will be accompanied by warm rains through the southern part of its course.

Another Mining Dept.

A. B. Booth & Co., have sold to Major M. W. Chollar for Major W. M. Maynadler, a large interest in the Santa Nino mine situated on the Ortiz Mine Grant, in the Dolores mining district, Santa Fe county, consideration not mentioned. We understand that Booth & Co., have also sold to Major Chollar another mine in the immediate neighborhood of the Santa Nino, running into the thousands. Major Chollar left this morning for New York to close deals concerning other properties in the same mining district, all of which were accomplished through Booth & Co.—Albuquerque Citizen, Oct. 22.

The Cerrillos Smelter.

According to the best information to be had from the miners, the most pressing need of the mining industry of New Mexico to-day is greater facilities for the reduction of ores. Particularly is this true of smelting ores. At the smelters now in blast the floors and bins are crowded with ores and the companies are unable to fulfill their contracts. The result of such a condition is such that they can refuse to work any but the most desirable ores, and have advanced their charges for treatment to nearly double what they were a year ago. Cerrillos has long been clamoring for a smelter. It is admitted to be the best point in the territory for such an industry and the people there ought to lose no time in taking advantage of the existing state of affairs to push this matter. It is understood that $30,000 has already been raised for this purpose. Under the circumstances it ought to be a very easy matter to raise the additional $20,000. Is Cerrillos alive to the importance of this project?—New Mexican.

The Denver papers are still discussing the Wagner-Miera marriage, and charge Rev. Mr. Brandt with shaving off his whiskers to imitate a Catholic priest. The papers have even written editorial leaders on the subject. Mr. Wagner last night prepared a letter and sent it to Denver for publication giving his side of the story. Much ado about nothing, it appears.

As Others See Us.

The following correspondence appeared in Tuesday's New Mexican: CERRILLOS, Oct. 19.—Is there anything more invigorating than to take a trip across the country during these magnificent days of sunshine and blustering air? I believe not. If you doubt it take a team and start over early in the morning crossing the valley to Cerrillos. You enjoy the trip and what at once will strike you upon reaching that burg, is its splendid industrial activity. Coal cars everywhere; teams having unloaded are going back to the mines for more coal; teamsters are shouting, men are shoveling, and just at this time everybody seems to be busy. Local stores and hotels are enjoying a good trade, and, in fact, wherever you turn your eyes you see something which will interest you, if you are at all interested in the welfare of your home country. If you shut your eyes and listen at noon to the whistle of the steam engines all around—certainly you will dream of Pittsburg, and why not?

Mines which are being developed are doing well here as also are those farther south; fuel is at hand in superabundance and all else that is needed to get the "precious" out of the ores is lavishly provided by Dame Nature. What a time there would be if they only would build a railroad south from here or still better south from our "ancient" but now rejuvenating city. No matter who builds it, it will be of benefit to this section and therefore to him. It's really astonishing what man can do here with and out of nature's gifts, if only better road facilities were provided. The mineral wealth, we know, is undiminished, but as figures talk and calculations have to be made to work at a profit—no matter what kind of a business a man follows—transportation cuts a considerable figure. Mines at and around Dolores, at and around Golden, at and around San Pedro are extremely rich, are well worked; but what greater annoyance can happen to a smelter man who has his yard full of mineral, his fluxing materials and everything else at hand and ready for work to be compelled to blow out his furnace or his roasting oven because he cannot procure in time the necessary amount of fuel; to blow out for perhaps a week or so and then blow in again? Such things would not happen at San Pedro if there was a railroad from Cerrillos. But even with such drawbacks now prevailing, south Santa Fe county holds its own. A ramble over the Ortiz mountains, the San Pedros or the Tuertos, will convince you of this fact.

All talk well of the country. The Santa Fe Copper company under Mr. McLaughlin's management, and Mr. Morgan as the smelter man, is doing nicely; the new Tuerto Mountain Copper & Gold Co. is making rapid steps to an early assumption of work. Their mines are on the north side of the Tuerto mountains, about two and a half miles east of Golden and about ten miles south of the Cerrillos coal fields, and bear ores similar to those on the south side of the mountain; they are partly quartz with oxides of iron and free gold, partly oxidized copper ore becoming with depth copper pyrites. They strike from west of north to east of south and dip about eight degrees east from the horizon. A smelter site for working the ores has been selected north of the mines whither the ores will be brought by a self-acting tramway, the smelter site being on government land—as the mines are—between the Canon del Agua and Ortiz mine grants. Water will be procured from a well which perhaps will be several hundred feet deep. Water can be procured anywhere at various depths in this section.

It is understood reverberatory furnaces will be used for the reduction of the ores and there is no doubt that this enterprise will meet with success and soon add another producing camp to the many prosperous ones now operated in Santa Fe county. H.

OBITUARY.

From the Santa Fe News. The funeral of the late Mrs. S. C. White was attended from St. Vincent's sanitarium by a large circle of friends. Father Devachon officiating. The floral offerings were beautiful, consisting of a cross from Mrs. R. W. Webb, a harp from Mrs. C. M. Croemer, a wreath from Mrs. John T. Forsha, and a bouquet of rare flowers from Mrs. M. L. Hart.

Mrs. S. C. White, of Golden, who was stricken with paralysis on the 10th of last July and has not since been able to walk or speak, breathed her last at St. Vincent's sanitarium, in this city, just at noon, yesterday. The deceased was tenderly conveyed to the sanitarium about three weeks ago, but, in spite of the best medical treatment and the ceaseless care of trained nurses, she has steadily failed and for several days before death terminated her sufferings was unconscious. She was born near Galena, Illinois, in 1846, but was brought up in Texas, where she married Mr. White, not changing her name, however, as it was the same as that of her husband, though they were not relatives. Twelve years ago Mr. and Mrs. White moved to Golden, south Santa Fe county, where they have since resided. The devoted husband and her brother, Frank White, were at the bedside of the dying woman, and did all in their power to promote her comfort. She left no children. Mrs. White was a most excellent woman, intelligent, thoughtful, and kind-hearted, and her death is deeply mourned by a large circle of warmly attached friends.

The funeral of John Johnson, the dead miner, took place this morning from the undertaking rooms, and was largely attended. Rev. C. I. Mills conducted the services. The pall bearers were Messrs. H. B. Cartwright, W. G. Ashdown, Alex. Allen, Felix Papa, W. S. Fletcher and Francis Bowlers. An autopsy was performed last night and it was found that inflammation of the bowels caused death.
